ESIR: an expert group to support transformative research and innovation policy

© European Union, 2022

The renewed ESIR 2022-2023 provides the Commission services with evidence-based policy advice on how to develop a forward looking and transformative research and innovation policy that drives the sustainability transitions. The experts will address the most pressing societal challenges and needs, working in new areas such as missions-oriented policies, and public health. They will also engage their relevant communities to disseminate the group's activities and outputs.

The group co-designs policy briefs, organises outreach activities, fosters policy experimentation and proposes solution oriented policy initiatives.
